Journal Indexing

- Process of listing a journal's articles in a specialized database or directory, making them searchable and discoverable by researchers.
- Indexing ensures quality and prestige of a journal.
- Few examples of indexed journals are –
The Lancet, JAMA, BMJ, Nature etc

Major Indexing Services

- Web of Science (> 34000 research journals)
- Scopus (Nearly about 46704 research journals)
- PubMed Central (PubMed/ Medline)
(> 5600 indexed journals and > 22 million total citations)

Impact Factor (IF)

- ▶ IF reflects the average number of times articles published in a journal during the two previous years have been cited in a given year.
- ▶ JCR (Journal Citation Report) of WoS is a major tool for measuring IF of journals.
- ▶ JCR provides quantitative tools for ranking, evaluating, categorizing and comparing journals.
(Thomson Reuters,2011)

Calculation of IF

Impact factor =
$$\frac{\text{Cites to recent (past 2 years) articles}}{\text{Number of recent (past 2 years) articles}}$$

Impact Factor Range (General guideline)

- ✓ Above 10 - Excellent - although unreachable in many disciplines
- ✓ Between 3 and 10 - Good to very good, depending on the specific field.
- ✓ Between 1 and 3 - Average but respectable in many fields.
- ✓ Below 1 - Generally low but acceptable for niche or emerging fields.

International Standard Serial Numbering (ISSN)

- ISSN is a unique, eight digit code that identifies a specific serial publication or continuing resource such as a journal , magazine, newspaper etc.
- Example, ISSN: 1234-5678

► Why ISSN is important:

- ✓ Identification
- ✓ Information Retrieval
- ✓ Credibility
- ✓ Communication

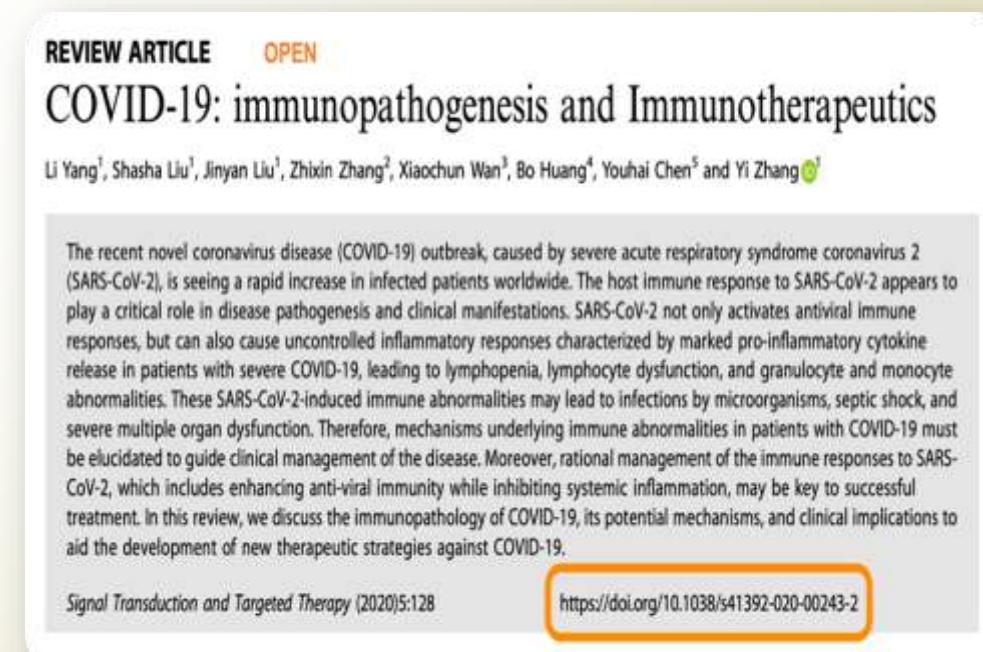

Digital Object Identifier (DOI)

- DOI is a string of numbers, letters and symbols, used to uniquely identify an article or document and to provide it with a permanent web address (URL)
- Example: <https://doi.org/10.3352/jehp.2013.10.3>

Why DOI is important?

It will help reader to easily locate a document from citation.

COVID-19: immunopathogenesis and Immunotherapeutics

Li Yang¹, Shasha Liu¹, Jinyan Liu¹, Zhixin Zhang², Xiaochun Wan³, Bo Huang⁴, Youhai Chen⁵ and Yi Zhang⁶

The recent novel coronavirus disease (COVID-19) outbreak, caused by severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus 2 (SARS-CoV-2), is seeing a rapid increase in infected patients worldwide. The host immune response to SARS-CoV-2 appears to play a critical role in disease pathogenesis and clinical manifestations. SARS-CoV-2 not only activates antiviral immune responses, but can also cause uncontrolled inflammatory responses characterized by marked pro-inflammatory cytokine release in patients with severe COVID-19, leading to lymphopenia, lymphocyte dysfunction, and granulocyte and monocyte abnormalities. These SARS-CoV-2-induced immune abnormalities may lead to infections by microorganisms, septic shock, and severe multiple organ dysfunction. Therefore, mechanisms underlying immune abnormalities in patients with COVID-19 must be elucidated to guide clinical management of the disease. Moreover, rational management of the immune responses to SARS-CoV-2, which includes enhancing anti-viral immunity while inhibiting systemic inflammation, may be key to successful treatment. In this review, we discuss the immunopathology of COVID-19, its potential mechanisms, and clinical implications to aid the development of new therapeutic strategies against COVID-19.

TARGET JOURNAL'S INSTRUCTIONS TO AUTHORS

General Structure of A Paper:

IMRaD structure:

- ✓ It refers to the standard structure of the body of research manuscripts (after the Title & Abstract)
- ✓ The term IMRaD represents the first letters of the words-

Introduction

Materials & Methods

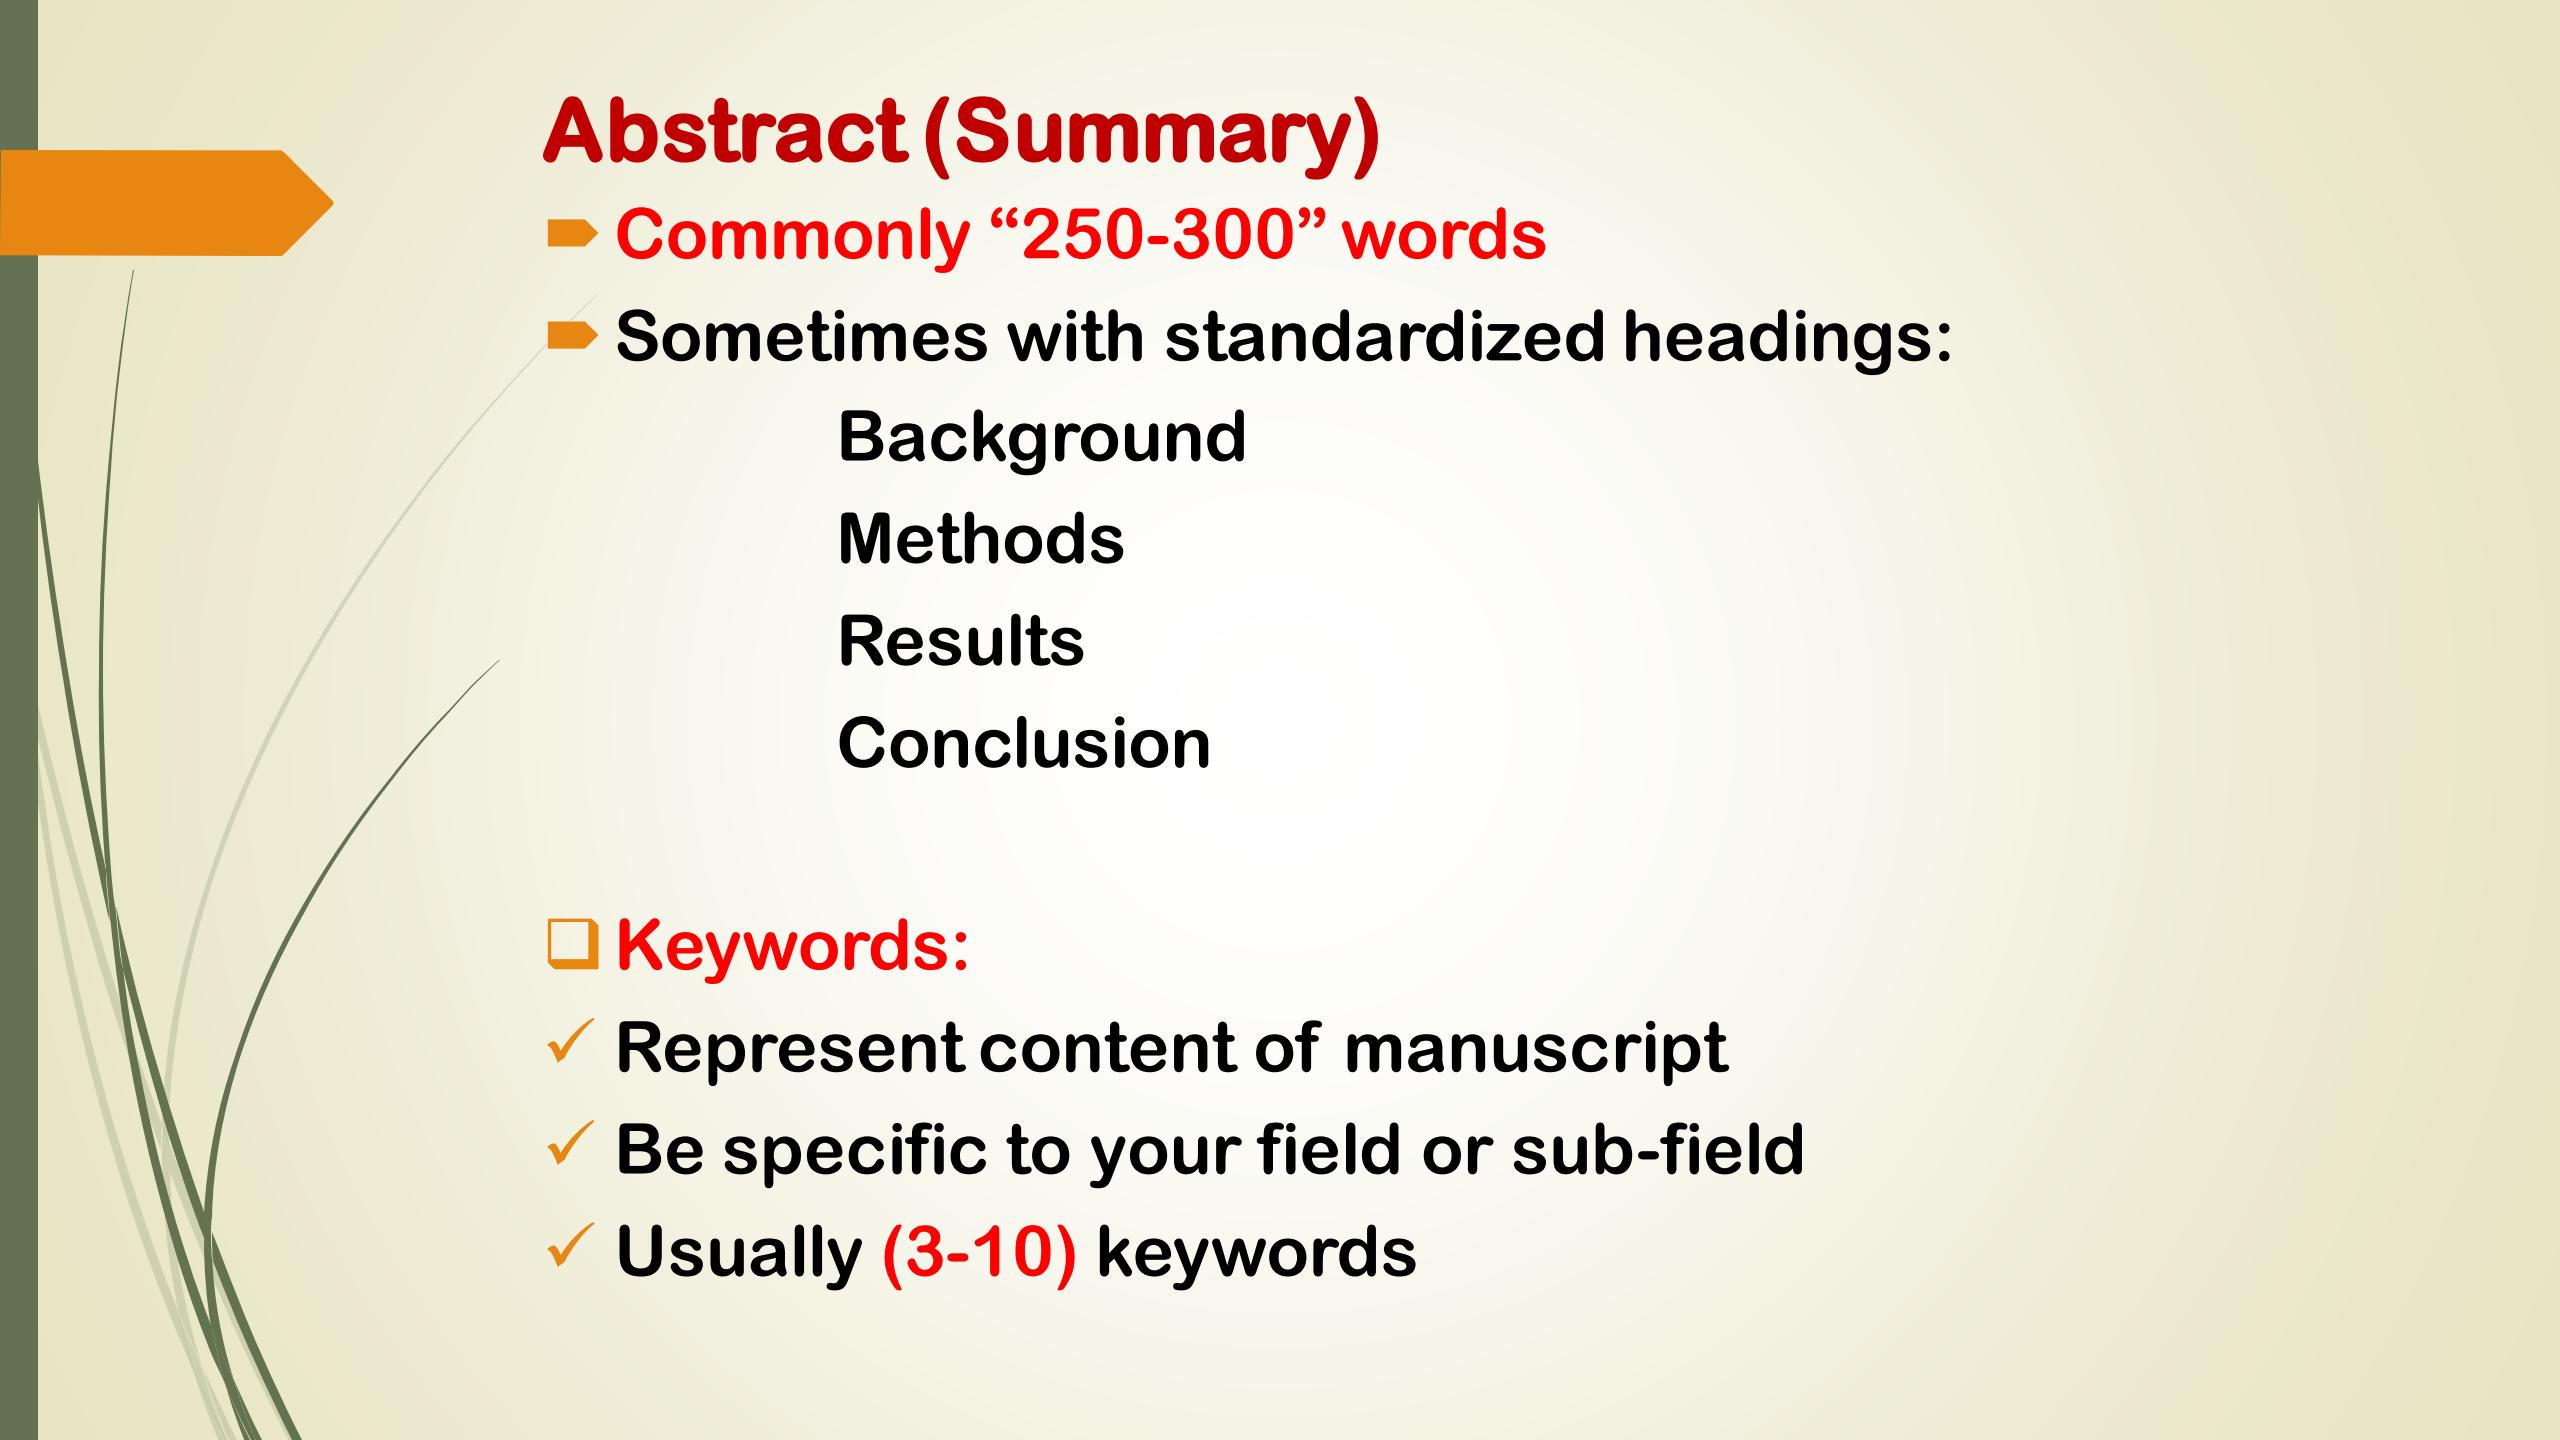

Results

Discussion & Conclusions

Title Page

- ▶ Title: concise & informative
- ▶ Author names & affiliations
- ▶ Corresponding author:
Name
Address
Contact number
&
Email address

Abstract (Summary)

- Commonly “250-300” words
- Sometimes with standardized headings:

Background

Methods

Results

Conclusion

- Keywords:

- ✓ Represent content of manuscript
- ✓ Be specific to your field or sub-field
- ✓ Usually (3-10) keywords

Introduction

- ▶ Explains the scope and objective of the study in light of current knowledge on the subject.
- ▶ Citations should be well balanced, current, relevant.

Materials & Methods

- Describes how the study was conducted

Results

- Reports what was found in the study

Discussion & Conclusions

- Explains meaning significance of the results and provide suggestions for future

Other Points

- Limitations of the study
- Abbreviations
- Acknowledgements
- Ethical approval
- Conflicts of interest
- Funding

Predatory Journals

What Are Predatory Journals And Why Should We Worry?

What is Predatory Journals?

“Predatory Journals” is a phrase (now wider usage) coined by Jaffrey Beall, scholarly communications librarian at the University of Colorado at Denver, that refers to journals (and journal publishers) whose main purpose seems to be to exploit scholars and academics and their need to publish the results of their research.

Characteristics of Predatory Journals

- ▶ Actively asks researchers for manuscripts via aggressive and persuasive emails.
- ▶ Requests that the manuscript be submitted via a personal email account.
- ▶ No/ very fast peer review process.
- ▶ Editors and editorial board affiliations are not verifiable.
- ▶ Asks for huge/very low publication charges.
- ▶ Spelling & grammar errors are found on website.
- ▶ Fake impact factor is promised (non JCR)

Characteristics of Predatory Journals

- ▶ Not a participant of reputable indexing and abstracting databases.
- ▶ Using ISSN improperly
- ▶ Rapid publication is promised
- ▶ Do not care about the quality of work published (often publish mediocre or even worthless papers)
- ▶ Mimics reputable journal site to confuse author

Beall's Criteria- Identifying Fake Journals

- ▶ No editorial board
- ▶ No academic expertise
- ▶ Insufficient information
- ▶ Hidden fees
- ▶ Poor website with dead links
- ▶ Republishing published papers
- ▶ Location is hidden
- ▶ No proper indexing
- ▶ Name of journal unrelated to origin

Original description

This is a list of questionable, scholarly open-access standalone journals. For journals published by a publisher, please look for the publisher on the list of publishers, here. This list is only for single, standalone journals.

We recommend that scholars read the available reviews, assessments and descriptions provided here, and then decide for themselves whether they want to submit articles, serve as editors or on editorial boards. In a few cases, non-open access journals whose practices match those of predatory journals have been added to the list. The criteria for determining predatory journals are here.

We hope that tenure and promotion committees can also decide for themselves how importantly or not to

VIOLATIONS

Integrity

- The publisher hides or obscures relationships with for-profit partner companies.

Peer Review

- Editors do not actually exist or are deceased
- The journal includes scholars on an editorial board without their knowledge or permission.

Publication Practices

- Falsely claims indexing in well-known databases (especially SCOPUS, DOAJ, JCR, and Cabells).
- The publisher displays prominent statements that promise rapid publication and/or unusually quick peer review (less than 4 weeks).
